SEVEN CAPITAL SINS

Among other things, the adjective capital means “grave,” that is, having serious consequences. It also means principal, that is, “comprising the highest category.” The list of seven capital sins fits both of these definitions.

What follows is a brief description of each of the capital sins. To determine how well you are striving to fight these basic sinful attitudes and habits, rate yourself on the statements that reflect a virtuous counterpart to each sin. Use this scale:

A = This statement describes me quite well.
B = This reflects my basic approach most of the time.
C = I’m so-so on this.
D = I have a long way to go.

Pride: an unlimited appreciation for one’s own worth; arrogance; excessively high opinion of oneself
___ I realize that God is the source of all gifts that I have. Without him, I would be and have nothing.
___ I am grateful for all my talents, gifts, and possessions and use them for the benefit of others.

Greed (Avarice): immoderate desire for earthly goods; love of money or possessions rather than loving God and others
___ I am relatively content with what I have.
___ I exercise delayed gratification to strengthen my will against the temptations of consumerism.

Envy: sorrow over another’s good fortune; covetousness; jealousy over another’s possessions or characteristics
___ I refrain from comparing myself to others.
___ I make an effort to praise the accomplishments of others, especially siblings, classmates, coworkers, and teammates.

Anger (Wrath): intemperate desire for revenge; hostile and wrathful feelings toward others
___ I cultivate a forgiving heart toward those who have harmed me.
___ When I have negative feelings toward others, I try to find peaceful ways to deal with my feelings.

Lust: inordinate, unrestrained craving for pleasure, especially sexual pleasure
___ I treat others as persons with dignity, not as objects for my own gratification.
___ Because the sexual appetite is so easily aroused, I avoid situations that will tempt me sexually.

Gluttony: unrestrained, immoderate consumption of food or drink
___ I stay away from drinking alcohol.
___ I eat healthy foods, exercise reasonably, and get sufficient rest.

Sloth: laziness in keeping the faith or practicing virtue; neglecting to do one’s duties out of lethargy
___ I take the time to do what God expects of me, for example, I pray every day and make sure I get to Mass every Saturday night or Sunday.
___ I commit myself to complete essential tasks, for example, my studies or chores around the house, no matter how boring they can be at times.

• Pride is often called the root of all sin. Discuss how pride gives rise to the other six capital sins.
WHAT IS SIN?

All of the following situations may be sinful. Rank them in order from 1 to 10 with 1 being the most sinful in your opinion, 10 being the least sinful.

___ refusing to help a little sister with her homework ___ ignoring a classmate who obviously wants to befriend you ___ lying to your parents about when you got home from a party ___ drinking at a party when you promised your folks you would not do so ___ arousing your sexual passions by reading pornographic material ___ taking the Lord’s name in vain ___ governmental programs that cut back welfare payments for unwed mothers ___ governmental policies that encourage women to have abortions ___ littering
___ wasteful use of water

• In your judgment, are any of these options not sinful? Why or why not? If you said no, what would make them sinful?

• What makes something a sin?

• For you, what is the most serious sin a person could commit?
THE BIBLE AND MORALITY

Questions

• What role should moral teaching from the Bible play in the formation of our consciences?

• Can a person justifiably act contrary to an explicit moral teaching from the Bible? Why or why not? Give examples.

• Are these teachings as relevant today as in biblical times? Explain.
THE NEW TESTAMENT ON SIN, JESUS, AND FORGIVENESS

Using the text on pp. 149–151, write your answers to the following questions:

• What are other descriptions of sin used in the New Testament?

• What is Jesus’ essential message related to sin?

• What are some examples of sin that Jesus strongly condemned?

• What is the heart of the Christian message related to sin?

• Share at least two specific occasions when Jesus forgave sin.

• What is Jesus’ three-step message of conversion?
MORE OR LESS SINFUL?

Judge which of the following probably constitutes “grave matter,” thus constituting mortal sin (M), “less serious matter” that would ordinarily constitute venial sin (V), or no sin at all (N).

____ 1. lying under oath
